I-797 for I-130
Pending

Description

I-797-for I-130- Immigrant Petition for Relatives or Orphan

Petitioner is a U.S. Citizen or Lawful Permanent Resident.

Required Documents

- Evidence of petitioner's status and
- Valid Passport and I-94 (I-94 may be expired) or
- DHS evidence of date of entry and duration of legal status and
- Documents showing relationship between petitioner and beneficiary such as:
 - Marriage Certificate for spouse.
 - Birth Certificate for siblings indicating same parents.
 - Birth Certificate proving child parent relationship.
 - Adoption papers when applicable.

Length of DL/ID Issuance

One year from date of driver license or identification card issuance.

Comment

- The duration of status may be expired as long as the I-130 was filed while in status.
- I-130 for immediate relatives may be over three years old (immediate relatives are spouse, parents, and unmarried minor children under 21 years old of USC only).
- I-130 for all other eligible relatives must be less than three years old to be accepted.

Eligible relatives of US Citizens include- unmarried children 21 years or older- married son or daughter any age - Your brother or sister (petitioner must be 21 or older).

Eligible relatives of Lawful Permanent Residents include – Spouse and unmarried children.

Immediate relatives who entered the United States legally and present a valid Passport, I-94 (may be expired) and a pending application for both the I-130 and I-485 can be issued a license or ID card, even if they did not file the I-130 and I-485 while in status.

In cases where the client may be in removal proceedings for an earlier application but has since become an immediate relative, an I-485 will not be necessary since the applicant can only file this when the I-130 is approved. The DL/ID can be issued based on the I-797 for the I-130 and the proof of the relationship as an immediate relative.

Example- customer presents a valid Passport and I-94 from Brazil, entered as a visitor (B2) on 12-10-2006, is now an overstay, married a US citizen and files the I-130 and I-485, customer can be issued a license or ID card with these two pending applications even though she did not file these forms while in status. Accept even if both applications have been filed separately. They do not have to be filed at the same time. This is allowed because she married a US citizen, which now makes her an immediate relative and came in to the US legally.
